

Pearl Chandelier Series

Krasnogorov Studio

The Pearl Chandelier is inspired by organic forms – lily pads, oyster shells, plant tendrils – but at the same time is a rationally conceived, architectural form that is driven by the material of its construction: wood. Woodworkers must work within the discipline imposed by the strengths and limitations of their medium. Like the triangulated trusses of a timber form barn, the carved arms and supports are shaped to carry their weight and function as members of a well balanced wooden structure. Carving this quality declined with the passing of the great masters of Art Nouveau – Gaudi, Majorelle, Guimard, etc. The Pearl is a modern reinvention of this tradition one hundred years later.
