EVOX2 BENCH, THOMAS NEWMAN STUDIO

The EVOX2 Bench is an elaboration of our EVO stool. For the most part, the same description holds for both pieces:

"The name "evolution" suggests an elemental, primitive concept – a simple beginning for more complex contemporary ideas that evolve from it. The two hand carved legs are identical, held together with a simple notched joint. Their sculptural, organic shape could be a fin, or a webbed foot of some prehistoric creature."

By joining two stools together, we not only have a larger seat, but the negative space between the two is a new design element.
